Sesamee® SearchAlert® Travel Locks

"Since all checked luggage is now required to be screened and many bags are opened prior to being loaded on planes, using a TSA-Accepted lock will help keep your bag secure throughout your travels."

CCL Security Products™ "All Sesamee TSA-Accepted travel locks provide security throughout your travel route by protecting your luggage at the airport, in your hotel room, when left with the valet or bellman and even while left in your car. Whenever your bags are out of your sight, they are vulnerable to theft. If bags are not secured properly, items may simply fall out. Sesamee TSA-Accepted locks help avoid these pitfalls, allowing travelers to focus on their trip, rather than the security of personal items. With the new 5000 series TSA-Accepted combination lock, we've made purchasing a TSA-Accepted lock more affordable than ever."

- Jerry Burhans
Worldwide Sales & Marketing Manager, for Sesamee.

Sesamee TSA-Accepted locks were born out of the travel rules and regulations established after September 11, 2001. Sesamee TSA-Accepted travel locks, come in a variety of easily identifiable colors and are emblazoned with a red and white diamond logo signaling officials that they meet TSA requirements. Sesamee was one of the first companies to join with the TSA and Travel Sentry™ to use the special diamond trademark to denote its locks are "air-travel-safe" and to signal TSA and airline officials that such bags can be easily inspected, then relocked.

Currently stocked at IDN-H. Hoffman, Sesamee offer a wide variety of TSA-Accepted Locks. For more information, please contact your local IDN-H. Hoffman Representative.

Q: Relating to CCTV products, what is the definition of a "pixel"?

A: The dots that make up pictures are called "Pixels". Pixel is derived from PICTURE ELEMENT. Put enough of them together and you have a picture. They are arranged horizontally and vertically. The number of pixels help determine the clarity of the image, but it's not as important as how closely the lines can be resolved in an image.

Q: Is there a difference between the Master Lock 6000 & 6000B key blank?

A: Yes there is. The 6000 blank had a flat bottom and the 6000B has a round bottom of the blade. The change was made in 2001 to tighten up plug tolerances. If you copy a 6000 onto a 6000B, you will be .0135" too deep. If you copy a 6000B onto a 6000, you will be .0135" too shallow. If you have the wrong blank, Master advises cutting the key by code on your code machine adjusting the depth of cut appropriately. New depths are: 0-.2845", 1-.2690", 2-.2535", 3-.2380", 4-.2225", 5-.2070", 6-.1915", and 7-.1760".
